ACG has been named a Coalition Greenwich Best Investment Consultant for seven consecutive years.

Methodology and Disclosure: Between February and September 2024, Coalition Greenwich conducted interviews with 699 individuals from 563 of the largest tax-exempt funds in the United States. These U.S.-based institutional investors are corporate, public, union, and endowment and foundation funds with either pension or investment pool assets greater than $150 million. Study participants were asked to provide quantitative and qualitative evaluations of their asset management and investment consulting providers, including qualitative assessments of those firms soliciting their business and detailed information on important market trends. ACG is one of three firms recognized in the mid-size investment consultant category. The ratings may not be representative of any one client's experience with ACG; rather they are representative of those clients that chose to participate in the survey. The results are not indicative of ACG's future performance. ACG does not pay to have its clients participate in the study.

Investment Strategy

Target date funds, also known as lifecycle funds, provide investors diversified exposure to a range of asset classes and investment strategies in a single investment vehicle. These funds are typically used to address a need for capital at a future (i.e. target) date, such as retirement. These funds generally include major equity and fixed income asset classes with allocation weights dependent on time horizon and risk tolerance. Over time, as the fund nears its target date, the allocation typically becomes more conservative with an increase in defensive asset classes, such as fixed income, and a reduction in growth oriented asset classes, such as equity. This change in allocation is defined as the fund's glide path and is typically defined as part of the fund's management strategy and philosophy.

Investment Strategy

Target date funds, also known as lifecycle funds, provide investors diversified exposure to a range of asset classes and investment strategies in a single investment vehicle. These funds are typically used to address a need for capital at a future (i.e. target) date, such as retirement. These funds generally include major equity and fixed income asset classes with allocation weights dependent on time horizon and risk tolerance. Over time, as the fund nears its target date, the allocation typically becomes more conservative with an increase in defensive asset classes, such as fixed income, and a reduction in growth oriented asset classes, such as equity. This change in allocation is defined as the fund's glide path and is typically defined as part of the fund's management strategy and philosophy.

Investment Strategy

Target date funds, also known as lifecycle funds, provide investors diversified exposure to a range of asset classes and investment strategies in a single investment vehicle. These funds are typically used to address a need for capital at a future (i.e. target) date, such as retirement. These funds generally include major equity and fixed income asset classes with allocation weights dependent on time horizon and risk tolerance. Over time, as the fund nears its target date, the allocation typically becomes more conservative with an increase in defensive asset classes, such as fixed income, and a reduction in growth oriented asset classes, such as equity. This change in allocation is defined as the fund's glide path and is typically defined as part of the fund's management strategy and philosophy.

Definitions of Statistical Measures

Alpha - the annualized difference between the manager's actual return and the manager's expected return given its relative risk vs. the benchmark (which is represented by beta, a measure that tracks volatility to an index).

Batting Average - a measure used to quantify a manager's ability to meet or beat a benchmark. A manager who outperforms the benchmark 20 out of a possible 40 times has a batting average of 50.

Beta - measures the portfolio's sensitivity of returns to market movements represented by the primary benchmark.

Down Capture - demonstrates the ratio of the portfolio's average returns relative to the benchmark in periods in which the benchmark had a negative return. For instance, a down-capture of 96% indicates that, on average, the portfolio is down 96% when the benchmark is down 100%. Lower portfolio down-capture is preferred.

R Squared - the amount of the manager's return that can be explained by the benchmark. A R Squared of 100 indicates a perfect correlation, while a R Squared of 0 indicates no correlation at all.

Sharpe Ratio - a measure of return per unit of risk. Higher sharpe ratios are preferred while negative ratios are generally meaningless and cannot be used for comparison purposes.

Standard Deviation - a measure of the portfolio's volatility. A large standard deviation relative to the benchmark represents volatile portfolio returns.

Tracking Error - a measure that reports the difference between the return of a manager that is received and that of a benchmark that the manager is attempting to track.

Up Capture - demonstrates the ratio of the portfolio's average returns relative to the benchmark in periods in which the benchmark had a positive return. For instance, an up-capture of 96% indicates that, on average, the portfolio is up 96% when the benchmark is up 100%. Higher portfolio up-capture is preferred.
